

Anubhuthi – Corporate Retreat

A retreat is any time you intentionally set aside a period of time for self-exploration, away from work with the agreement that you will not be disturbed by outside intrusions. This time allows you the ability to get your group back on track, re-energized and focused. There are many different forms of retreats and all retreats are not created equal. Although there are many 'canned' retreat ideas, make sure that you select your location and environment very carefully based upon the people attending and the outcomes you want.

Does this mean we should keep everyone happy; No. In fact, helping the participants step out of their comfort zone is part of what is necessary to create a meaningful retreat. There are simply too many distractions if you do not step away from your normal operating environment - cell phones, beepers, secretaries, employees, all competing for your attention. We offer Anugraha Corporate Retreat that will be beneficial to your corporate group. However, make sure it is the right facilitator with the right skillset for your outcomes. We offer a full-spectrum of corporate retreats with various outcomes:

Executive retreats

Board retreats

Team building retreats

Leadership retreats

Customised retreats...

These retreats are designed to be experiential in nature and are best for corporate values like building trust, establishing better lines of communication, developing leadership and decision-making -- essentially working on 'soft' skills to create a better group or a corporate team.
